After an intense first game against the West Senators, Coach Henry encourages the girls to keep up the good work. The girls listened to her advice and came out with an overall win for the match.

Charli McClay takes a deep breath to focus on serving the ball over the net. You can't let the noise of the crowd psych you out, said the freshman.

Taylor Cantrell makes a strong approach as she swings for the far corner of the court. Darbie Jenkins and Skyler Gambill covered her in case the attack was blocked.

Soaring through the air, middle blocker Rachel Moos attempts to block the Clay Panther's middle attacker during the first game of the season. The purpose of blocking is to either knock the ball back on the opposing team's side or to at least slow the ball down so another player can get under it for a dig.

We ACED the Competition

1. After defeating Notre Dame and Piketon in the Spike Out Cancer tri-match, the teams line up to make a pink and blue cancer ribbon. The money collected by the match was donated to cancer patients in the local area.
2. Middle attacker Melanie Smalley goes up for the spike against Paint Valley's middle blocker. The rest of the team covered in the proper cup formation to be sure the ball didn't hit the floor if it was blocked.
3. The varsity team breaks out the huddle after some encouraging words from Coach Bayes. These pre-game pep talks were vital in keeping up the morale of the team.
4. Mandi Kidder recites the speech she wrote about Alexis Gambill for senior night. It is a tradition for each of the juniors to write a speech about the seniors and read them to the crowd before the varsity game.

CHAMPIONS TRAIN

[Endure Pain]

And NEVER Complain

In preparation for his next putt, Timmy Hamblin marks his ball before picking it up. After the ball lands on the green, the players mark their spots following each hit to avoid the dangers of being knocked off course by another player.

At the Valley Invitational, Fredrik Bakke accelerates his speed despite the stifling September heat. Fredrik had to adjust to the temperature because of the extreme difference in weather from his home country of Norway.

Wearing his new Skele shoes, Lee Wurluft grits his teeth and pushes past the fatigue to beat the pack. Wearing the Skele shoes helped Lee achieve his record of 18:43 minutes at the S.O.C. meet. My goal for next year is the get 15 minutes flat," explains Lee.

Trent Stenger helps Mr. Burton clock in the middle school runners before the high school races begin. Before a home meet, the coach prepares packets for each team containing score cards, written directions and maps of each course.

After the gunshot, Maranda Murphy and Sarah Howard dash past their opponents leaving the starting line of the Mohawk Invitational in their dust. Maranda and Sarah always run the first mile together at every meet. One time Sarah had her mom talk to me during the final stretch to create a distraction, so Sarah could pull ahead and beat me, laughed Maranda.

What really gives you the creeps?

The thing that gives me the creeps would have to be feet with faces drawn on them."

Jrenton Stenget (14)

Howard Merritt addresses the ball before the shot while warming up prior to the meet. In preparation for each meet, the team gathers at the course two times a week to perfect their putting, chipping and driving.

Cameron Pope speculates as his competitors continue the hole he just completed. Picked by the coaches, the teams travel the course, in groups of five to six members, based on skill. Cameron's skills allowed him to travel to Pickerington, being the only member to compete in districts since Coach Sturgell.

Walking off the green, Michale Banks travels to the next tee box with his opponent to begin the next hole. In a nine hole course the golfers can end up walking for miles due to the rule that golfers are not allowed to rent or drive carts during a meet.

After chipping, Hunter Biggs watches his ball fly towards the green on the Elks Country Club golf course. The Elks course has the highest admission, but the golf team gets unlimited golfing time for three months during the season.

Center, Dylan Osborn anxiously listens for the quarterback's cadence before expertly snapping the ball. In order to perfect the timing, the team practiced it over and over always keeping the cadence the same. Snapping the ball begins the whole play, and if I don't snap the ball at the correct time, the whole line will get a false start," explained Dylan.

Tylor Slack tackles the Waverly Tigers ball carrier with an assist from Cory Burnworth. The defensive linemen practiced tackling by doing form tackles on dummies.

After a fumble recovery, Coach Fry calls a time out to motivate the team. The pep talk encouraged keeping up their hard work, continuing their intensity, and maintaining focus on their mission to win.

The Junior Varsity offense gets down in position and listens for the hike to start the play. Playing against the Varsity line allowed them good practice for their upcoming games.

Travis Sifford carefully holds the ball as German foreign exchange student, Linus Schnack kicks a field goal. Linus also showcased his spectacular kicking skills on the soccer field.

1. During pre-game, the boys do push-ups, sit-ups, and quickly review their formations. Before feed-the-team that week, the players had to do 50 push-ups prior to eating because they disregarded Coach Fry and left practice early.

2. Before the game against Southeastern, the defensive backs and the linebackers do high point drills. After the team defeated the Panthers, they charged into the locker room and fell because their cleats were metal.

3. While receiving a shoulder pad adjustment, Tyler Vastine gets a quick pep talk from Coach Lute. He reminded Tyler to keep up the hard work and to tell the linemen to stay low.

4. The crowd goes wild as Luke Brown dives across the goal line against Notre Dame with 8.4 seconds left in the game. Before the ball was snapped, I kept telling myself I was going to score no matter what! "Luke exclaimed.

Senior band members join hands and savor their final marching practice. While the seniors were in their huddle, the rest of the band marched around them playing the school song.

Alex Brown, Elliot Wuycheck, Jacob McClay, and Dew Hughes jam brass style during the halftime show. After listening to millions of songs, band director, Mrs. Stephan, created the original theme 'The Magic of Make Believe' to showcase the band's diverse abilities.

Before participating in a performance at the Ohio University Band Day, the band poses for a picture on the O.U. green. The event allowed the Marching Mohawks to take a break from the stressful competitions and just enjoy the experience.

Despite the record breaking heat, the trumpet section stands at attention waiting for the River Days Parade to begin. During the parade, the band assistants handed out ice cubes for the members to suck on between songs.

Doing Something Wrong

After Taylor Hamilton scored the first touchdown against Huntington Ross, the band begins to play "Across the Field," under the direction of Katie Moore and Amber Montavon. Katie and Amber sacrificed their summer to attend Field Commander Camp to learn the proper techniques.

The flag corps holds their flags high with stoic posture, before the Southeastern football game. This stance came easily to the girls after the extensive hours of practice they endured over the summer.

With instruments held high, the Marching Mohawks walk proudly through Rarden during the Whitetail Deer Festival. Following the parade, the band seized the opportunity to relax and enjoy the variety of activities.

After presenting the famous Northwest N, the band plays the National Anthem while American Legion Post 363 presents the colors. Due to Mrs. Stephan's increasing baby bump, Miss Huff took her place on the towering podium.

Departing from their normal poised and formal posture, the band breaks tradition and shows their fun side with a dance. Using elements from the O.U. style dance, the band danced to their version of "The Party Rock Anthem" as the crowd enthusiastically responded. "The dancing was my favorite part of marching," exclaims freshman Brooke Miller.

1. Coach Amburgey leads the team in a quiet heartfelt prayer before senior night. The elementary cheerleaders gave the team goody bags filled with candy and cheered the team on to a victory.
2. Marcus Lisath, central defender, clears the ball out of danger allowing the defense a chance to get back. In the off season Marcus traveled to Waverly to participate in futsal and indoor soccer.
3. Right full back, Lee Wartluft puts a move on the Waverly defender to steal the ball back. Lee assisted in scoring a goal to advance the score against Waverly.
4. Running to start the game, the starters move into their positions on the field in anticipation of the start of the match. Performance during practice determines who gets a starting position in the upcoming match.

Tasha Vaughn aggressively swims towards the finish line in the Individual Medley, placing second in the race. The Individual Medley consists of four strokes: the fly, the breast, the back stroke, and the free style.

Lexi Boyd swims the breast stroke as part of the Four-stroke Medley. Lexi prefers this stroke because it is one of the slower and more difficult strokes. Coach Maple reminds the breast stroke swimmers to "Be A Frog!!, Be A Frog!!"

Becca Boyd assumes the starter position on the platform and listens expectantly for the alarming whistle. Becca's older sister, Lexi, forced her to commit to swim and now she loves the sport of swimming.

Swimmer Alicia Thomas happily swims her favorite stroke, the free style. Despite the joy, swimming presents challenges including water in the mouth and eyes, chlorine induced burns, and runaway goggles.

Katie Moore swims her way to the finish using the butterfly stroke. "I love the adrenaline and the rush of swimming when I'm in the water," Katie expressed.

Competitive swimmer, Luke Montavon steps up to fiercely face his opponents. Luke not only set out to seek defeat over his rivals, but also to achieve his personal best.

Implementing the required stroke, Charli McClay masterly swims in the free style heat. To perform up to her expectations, Charli stayed calm, stretched, and reminded herself "You got this !"

The counters get ready to shove the number placard under the water to allow the 500 Freestyle swimmers to keep track of the number of laps they still need to complete. Behind the glass, the swim team fan club motivated the team with their presence and snacks.

Seeing their fellow lifter painfully deadlift 430 pounds, Kody Miller, Coach Crabtree, and Robbie Arnett scream encouragements not allowing Travis Sifford to surrender. Travis' determination paid off later when he placed second at the state competition held in Kenton, Ohio.

Crowd pleaser, Brian Bender squats triple his own body weight using his legs, back, and butt muscles. Coach Crabtree stood behind Brian not only to encourage him but to guarantee his safety.

Shawn Douglas steadies himself in starting position as he listens for the buzzer demanding he spring into action at the start of the race. In order to master the tire flipping race, one must maintain balance, control, and precision.

Justin Tackett skillfully maneuvers his body while participating in the competitive dip competition held during the Arnold Classic in recognition of the famous body builder. Soon after beginning, Justin realized that in order to dip he had to use his triceps, which is not as easy as it looks.

Pleased with their outstanding performance, the powerlifters proudly display the hard-earned trophy symbolizing their spot as state runner-up. Kicking off the season, the team goal was to bring home a state trophy and after months of training they were triumphant.

To the Ball Game

1. Patiently, Drew Brown waits for the ball to hit the pocket of his glove after bolting to a position where he can make the play. Drew regularly started Varsity at second base.
2. Philip Cassidy winds up to release the ball in a Varsity game against the Clay Panthers. In addition to being a pitcher, Philip often played third base and catcher.
3. Running out the play, Matt Penix extends his arm to catch the line drive while Wade Gillette sets himself behind Matt as back-up. Wade was on his toes and ready to make the play, if the ball happened to get by Matt.
4. After expertly catching the fly ball to the outfield, Justin Tackett quickly positions himself to throw the ball to second base. Each outfielder was taught to always throw the ball in as quickly as possible to increase the team's chance of getting another out, or to stop a runner from advancing a base.

Continually conscious of his boundaries, Travis Sifford launches the hefty five-pound disc. The results of Travis' throw are measured from the edge of the circle to where the disc lands.

Several of the boy's track team members are caught taking a breather from their hectic track responsibilities. The boys enjoyed playing an eventful game in which they attempted to keep the yellow soccer ball off the ground using any favorable body part.

Why do women shave their armpits and men don't?

Because the armpits are a man's manhood, and once you shave, you shave off manliness. "

Gabe Howard (14)

With every muscle straining, Cory Burnworth hauls his entire body over the high jump bar. With Cory being the highest jumper on the team, he had to sustain a healthy body and remain physically fit throughout the season.

Senior Zach Wooten prepares his body for the upcoming excruciating throw. Upon hearing his name called, Zach had only sixty seconds to commence the one-handed throwing motion before a foul would be called.

Operating as a team, Linus Schnack and Micah Campbell test their ability to work together as they run the 4x200 meter relay. This relay not only required Linus and Micah to run, but it was also mandatory to pass a baton.

Increasing the gap between himself and his competitors, Shane Bush proudly leads in the upbeat 400 meter dash. In this competition Shane had to complete one lap around the track to determine his speed, acceleration, and distance capabilities.

Maintaining his balance, Chambers McClay slides into a pit filled with delicate sand while participating in the long jump event. In this event, track members had to run down a runway and leap as far as possible from a take off point.

When Words Fail... Music Speaks

-  Justin Miller, Preston Hall, and Kenny Workman sing their much practiced song during their second block chorus class. The boys practiced every day to make sure the concert would go smoothly.
-  Trumpet players Gabe Pertuset and Austin Ferguson carefully watch Mrs. Stephan for the signal to stop playing. The boys wanted to be sure they stopped on her cue, so the song would have a clean ending.
-  Accompanied by Mr. Colegrove, seniors Kayla Clark, Jennifer Lebrun, and Kyle Hall sing their parts of the song. They sang songs that would be in their upcoming concert and songs that were just for fun.
-  Miranda Miller and Kyle Redoutey expertly play their piece during a home basketball game. Each student who goes to all the games for pep band receives a special award at the end of the year.

Cameron Pope sings his solo, as Cody Penn and Justin Cullum accompany him on their acoustic guitars. The boys practiced every week to ensure their success during the spring concert performance.

During Evening with the Arts, the entire second semester chorus classes sing their much practiced songs. This year during Evening with the Arts the singing portion was held outside due to the nice weather.

The first semester chorus classes come together to sing 'Jingle Bells', conducted and accompanied by Mr. Colegrove. Instead of having the classes wear white shirts and black pants, Mr. Colegrove gave them all matching bow ties and suspenders.

After a thorough instrument inspection, Mrs. Stephan finds the sticky button on Charli McClay's saxophone. If any part of the instrument does not perfectly fit, it can hinder many different notes and tunes.

Focusing intently on their notes, Bryson Richey and Wade Gillette hit the bells as Reuben Miller, Jordan Moore, and Sarah Howard wait their turn to play. During the spring concert the band played pieces from famous movies including the Harry Potter theme song.

Senior Tyler Vastine instructs the chorus class on how their dance should look for their upcoming concert. During the song, the chorus members moved around the risers at certain points of the song.

Musical Medley

Decked out in Christmas attire the band expertly plays the notes to their remix of many different festive tunes. Mrs. Stephan took various Christmas songs and meshed them together to create a new type of carol. Other songs that were played at the concert were Sleigh Ride, C'est Noel, and the all-time favorite White Christmas.

Freshman K'Lee McClurg adjusts the color in her Photoshop assignment for Web Design. In Web Design the students learned how to use Adobe Photoshop, Dreamweaver, and Proshow.

Launching Designs

As part of her daily routine, Chelsie Cooper types updates of the news for the Northwest school web page. This was completed by Mrs. Moore's Web Master students to inform fellow classmates about what was going on with sports, activities, and senior information.

Computer Applications student Tyler Fields has a little bit of extra time after he completes his work, so he took advantage of the free break by surfing the Internet. After all his work was finished, Tyler spent his free time getting on Google and looking up fun games to play.

Ryan Stephens and Ronnie Emmons participate in The Puzzle Cube Challenge assigned by Mr. Keaton. In order for this task to be completed the cube must consist of five pieces, each had to contain between three to six blocks, and no two pieces could be the same color.

Yearbook editors Alexis Gambill and Tiffany Conley assist Kevin Hoops with head shots on picture day. Tiffany and Alexis had both been editors for two years and had helped Kevin with countless picture days.

Engulfed in her work, freshman Kayla Altman completes an assignment in Miss Patrick's Intro. to Business class. This course introduced topics such as establishing and maintaining credit, buying insurance, and saving and investment strategies.

Jessie Myers proudly reveals the proper stance for a safety during the yearbook workshop. That day, representatives Alan Swank and Lindsey Swank traveled to the school to show the yearbook staff new techniques for their yearbook production.

New student Morgan Delong logs onto the computer in Mr. Keaton's class, while Drew Brown, Tasha Vaughn, and Justin Miller show her the ropes. After the thorough explanation of the program, Morgan got the hang of it and proceeded to do her work without any assistance.

Mrs. Henry's Algebra I students quietly finish their demanding homework assignments. With Algebra I being a graduation requirement, it was necessary for the freshmen to put forth every bit of effort throughout the entire semester.

Payton Gubernath and Cody Penn identify the external features of the male squid. Before beginning the dissection, it was essential to recognize the outermost components of the squid, including the eyes, tentacles, arms, and fins.

In Physical Science, Mr. Thompson explains his instructions for the balloon car race. To demonstrate Newton's Laws of Motion, the class was required to separate into teams and artistically design their own balloon car which was required to accelerate ten centimeters.

Performing the duties of scientists, Courtney Dowdy and Amanda Doss execute the organic molecules lab. Throughout the biological process, students tested ten given solutions for proteins, carbohydrates, and lipids.

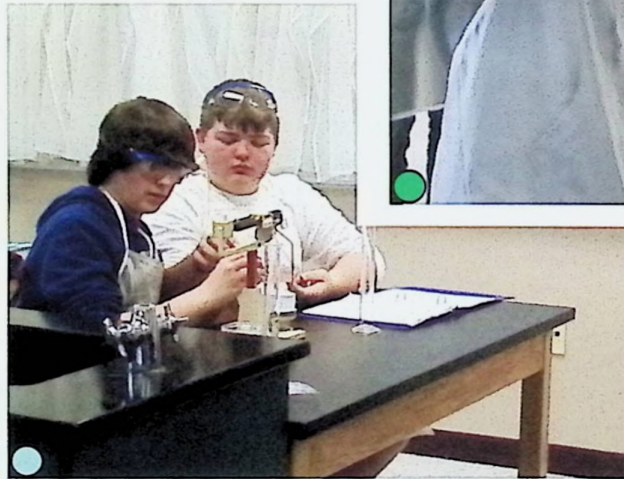

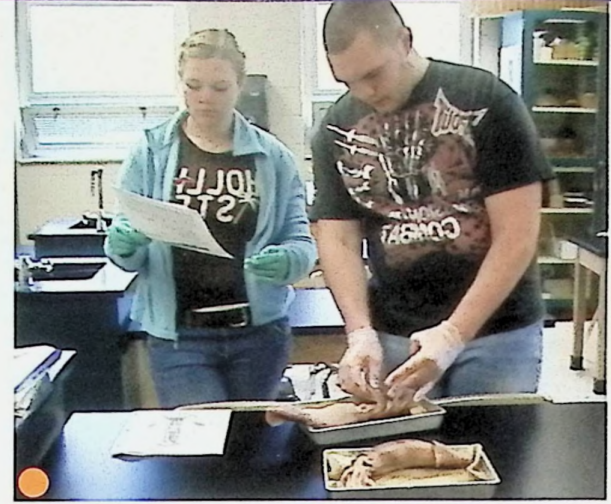

Aaron Neville and Tanner Throckmorton curiously carry out the conservation of mass lab. The objective for this lab was to better understand how matter cycles through the Earth's system.

Although many students may find science tiresome, R.J. Mason and Tommy Euton discover a whole new realm by engaging in a microscopic search. They found plants are characterized by their unique cell walls.

Excited and curious, Donny Abrahms gauges the water temperature of the fish habitat.

Mr. Keeny's fish tank provided a soothing and restful atmosphere for his students.

Disregarding the overpowering smell, Jonny Throckmorton forces open the stomach region of his fetal pig. Once the diaphragm was broken, Mrs. Kuhn administered an oral quiz to each group regarding the organs and circulatory system.

Experimenting With Curiosity

Maanyail Vest, DJ. Hemming, Ashley Riley, Marcus Potter, and their fellow Algebra I classmates take a serious approach to their assigned homework. Some freshmen were fortunate enough to have already earned their Algebra I credit in the eighth grade, allowing them to advance directly into Geometry.

Katie Fuller releases the marble down a path between the meter stick ramp while group members Mariah Spriggs and Faith Francis closely observe and take notes. The Physics students stopped and started the marble at specific time intervals in order to later create a position-time graph.

Anatomy and Physiology instructor Mrs. Kuhn guides lab partners Kelsey Howard and Courtney Hill as they identify the various muscles of the cat. I chose cats for dissection because they are not only the closest animal to a primate students are allowed to dissect, but their organs and muscles are shockingly close to humans, Mrs. Kuhn explained.

Hayleigh Barnhart and Dicey Boyd busy themselves on an assignment after a discussion. All freshmen must take Health because of the graduation requirement. During the course, they learned about popular topics like healthy eating to serious topics such as child birth.

Intern Howard Merritt provides Taylor Slack with a useful golf explanation. In order for one to successfully hit the golf ball, his or her left foot should be directly under the left shoulder and the hips must be the engine of the swing, rotating for power.

Freshman, Ethan Trowbridge succeeds in touching his foot as he strives to adequately stretch his tight hamstrings. In gym class, Coach Spears stressed the importance of readying your body for a strenuous workout.

Mitchell Lute, Brooke Travis, and Savannah Burchett use their upper body strength to hold the plank position while Coach Spears counts to ten. Planking, an intense arm and chest exercise, can be performed multiple ways including on your elbows, on your knuckles, or on your side.

Mrs. Bayes' gym class seeks to warm up their stiff bodies by engaging in a jumping jack exercise. Although jumping jacks may be simple, they are almost always incorporated into fitness because they are a serious cardiovascular endurance workout.

Attempting a lay-up. Brandon Meadows springs through the air in hopes of increasing his team's overall score. Defender, Brandon Riggs raced under the basket in an effort to hinder Meadows' glory.

After Coach Bayes throws in the soccer ball, both teams watch anxiously as Drew Scarberry and Jerome Evans skillfully face-off. Based on the nature of the class, Mrs. Bayes wisely decided to throw the ball in instead of traditionally setting it down.

What is the funniest thing you have ever heard a teacher say?

I want to hear the saxophone section...no wait, I'm a liar." - Mrs. Stephan

Hayleigh Barnhart (15)

Who is your favorite Disney Princess and why?

I think Cinderella because she has it the best and she's the prettiest."

Just Having Some FUN

● Intern Jodi Bapst reviews the schedule she created for the middle school band. Jodi helped Mrs. Stephan and Miss Huff with their schedules, organizing their office, and tuning the instruments of the middle school band members.

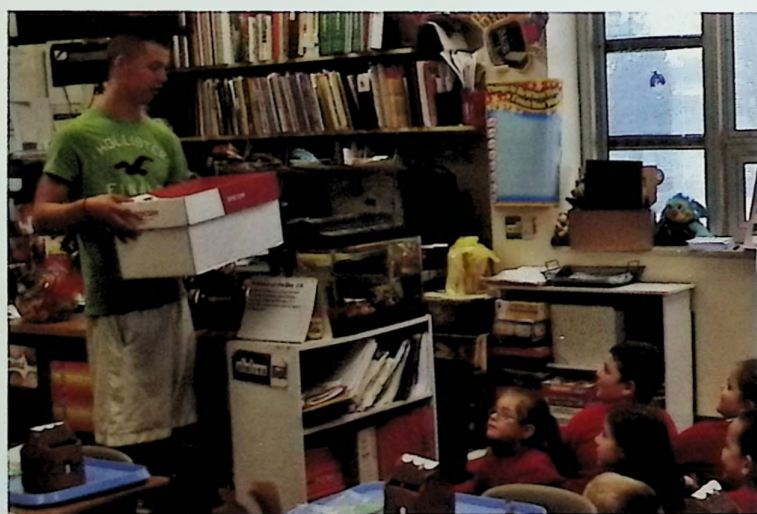

● Peer listener Allison Pendleton helps her student search for the remaining Easter eggs. Every year the peer listeners travel over to the elementary school to hide the eggs and then aid the kids in locating them.

● Ashley Jeffers assists her young student with the construction of a gingerbread house. After receiving a special delivery from Santa, the students made gingerbread houses and mixed together reindeer food.

● Heather Riggs successfully helps Ben Carrington work on writing his spelling words to practice for his spelling test. In Reading Lab, the peer listeners helped the students with reading difficulties by practicing reading and writing with them.

Acting as the secretary, Rachel Moos answers a call made to the school during her third block internship with Mrs. Hamilton. Interning for Anita required answering the telephone, making announcements, and relaying messages to students and teachers.

After rushing into Mrs. Schuyler's class with a box, Dustin Seaman reads the return address of the North Pole to the students. The students wrote letters to Santa with their Christmas wishes, and the peer listeners replied to each letter as if they were elves from the North Pole.

To add a little excitement, Holly Eichenlaub sits down with Mrs. Powell's class and plays a game to help them learn their spelling words. Holly loved working with kids and this experience confirmed her decision to become a teacher.

During Fun Day, Amanda Doss and Stephanie Crawford blow bubbles with the elementary kids. The kids had a competition with the peer listeners to see who could blow the biggest bubbles.

Ben LaJoye helps a first grader tie his shoe after returning from recess. Not only did the peer listeners help with academics, they also helped with life lessons such as tying shoes.

At the track and field, seniors Kayla Howard and Holly Miller instruct the students on where to stand along the outside of the parachute. The parachute was a favorite activity for the children participating in Fun Day.

Working Together

In Mrs. Schuyler's Transition-to-First-Grade class, Mandi Kidder helps Emma Thomas color coloring pages for her parents for St. Patrick's Day. Volunteering in Mrs. Schuyler's class always provided the peer listeners with new and exciting projects that went along with the upcoming holiday.

Helping kids is great, and they are all just so cute,"Mandi exclaimed.

WHO KNEW

meant having to kiss a frog?

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT

Stepping up onto the cafeteria stage, Rachel Wolfenbarger presents her ball gown speech to Ms. Weaver's C.P. speech critics. The ball gown section of the pageant was my favorite part and making my speech for the speech class really helped me prepare for the big day, 'explains Rachel.

PRINCESS TIANA
 Frog Princess, Rachel Wolfenbarger waves to her adoring fans from atop her bog inspired float. Since Rachel was competing at Cheer for a Cure, her sister Sarah attended the selection meeting and in a random pick received Princess and the Frog reflecting the Riverdays theme 'A Riverdays Fairytale.

LET'S GO RACHEL!

Trying to ignore the stifling heat while tossing candy to the crowd, the cheerleaders ride on the trailer pulled by Jimmy Jones. The squad arrived at the Spartan Stadium at 8 a.m., with candy in hand, to decorate their float.

REPPIN THIS

Along with fellow Scioto County cheerleaders, Kenzie Horsley enthusiastically performs during an intermission, allowing the candidates time to make a wardrobe change. Cheer coach, Shona Rossi, selected the two highest scoring cheerleaders to represent Northwest on the dance team.

LIGHT IT UP, LIKE IT'S DYNAMITE

Co-field commander, Katie Moore conducts the Marching Mohawks in warm-ups before the parade. To prepare for the parade, the band marched around the school grounds ending with a show for the elementary students.

TIANAS PLACE WINS 3RD

Observing the parade from the sidewalk, twins Kayla and Kelsey Howard join their family in cheers as Miss Rachel Wolfenbarger slowly passes on her crowd pleasing float. The float received third place in the homemade division.

CONTESTANT NUMBER TWELVE

Wrapping up the first round of the interview segment, Miss Northwest grabs her question for the reigning queen to ask. Coincidentally, both of Rachel's questions required a personal reflection on both her best and worst qualities.

I'M BEAUTIFUL IN MY WAY

After endless hours of practice, Rachel and the rest of the candidates perform their well-rehearsed dance to Lady Gaga's Born this Way. Also requiring practice time was the fashion skit, a new addition to the pageant, where the competitors acted out a scene or story line from their Disney movie.

My best qualities are that I am smart and funny, and my worst quality would have to be that I over analyze everything."

Allie Lacey (14)

What do you think are your best and worst qualities?

I think my best quality is that I'm not self-centered. My worst quality would be that I'm shy at times."

Elliot Wuycheck (12)

IT GETS REAL

1. While participating in the clean-up Brush Creek project, Cheyenne Free, Taryn Hyland and Becca Boyd examine the turtle shell as they contemplate the answers for the incoming fifth graders. Thanks to all the volunteers, Brush Creek continues to be one of the cleanest creeks in Ohio.

2. After shooting his ten point buck, Alex Jenkins proudly displays his kill. Since there is more pride associated with bow hunting than hunting with a gun, Alex preferred using his Matthews EZ7 on his quests.

3. Alexis and Skyler Gambill putt-putt golf at Hawaiian Rumble while on vacation in Myrtle Beach. The girls also tested a new restaurant called Pirated Voyage, where they ate like buccaneers in a sea theme vessel.

4. Unloading the hefty box, Corey Farmer rolls the shipment off of the loading dock. Corey took early exit during second semester to work full-time at Big Sandy.

5. Kayde Ketter quickly rinses the suds off the dishes at After the Game. In preparation for a move to The Golden State, Kayde stood long hours on her feet to earn enough cash to attend college in Calif.

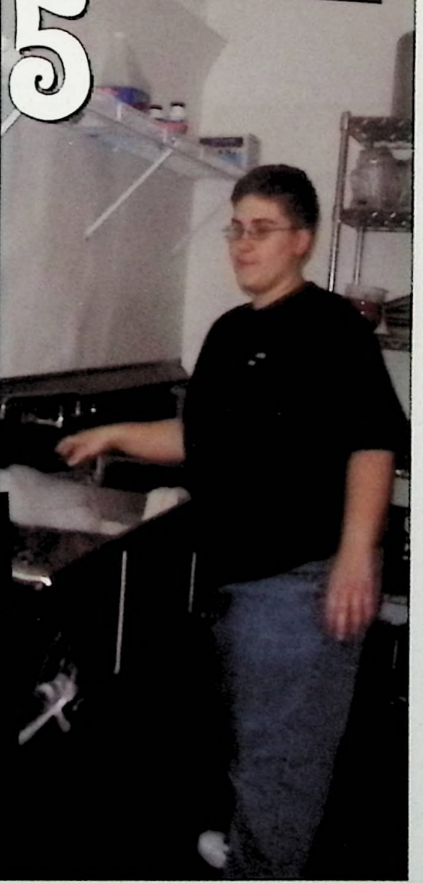

6. Following the visit to the Dent House, a haunted Cincinnati school house, Makala Hunt planks the banister at her hotel. Kaela Shirey, Skyler Gambill and Alyssa Sparks accompanied Makala on the trip.

The haunted house was my favorite part of the trip, but it was not as scary as I expected," explained Kaela.

7. Luke Pertuset wrestles the hog to the ground during the greased pig contest at the White Tail Deer Festival. Each competitor was placed in groups with opponents based on age with the winner receiving fifty dollars.

8. Standing in front of the Wrestle Mania Arena in Atlanta, Georgia, Jordan Gambill prepares to see the Edge. The fans, the entertainment, and the music created an exciting atmosphere for Jordan and his family. Jordan announced, "The best part was when I went to the Wrestle Mania Access to get autographs from my favorite wrestlers."

9. Concluding the performance of her favorite singer Luke Bryan, Savanna Maguire fortunately has the opportunity for a picture with Luke and his son, Bo. Savanna attended the Luke Bryan concert because a friend requested the tickets from the Make-a-Wish Foundation.

Kneek, Kneek!

After receiving her flowers and trophy from Rachel Moos and Brooke Tipton, Paige Simon and Blain Honaker listen intently as Rachel tells a joke to calm everyone's nerves. Rachel, the master of entertainment, helped to get rid of all the butterflies.

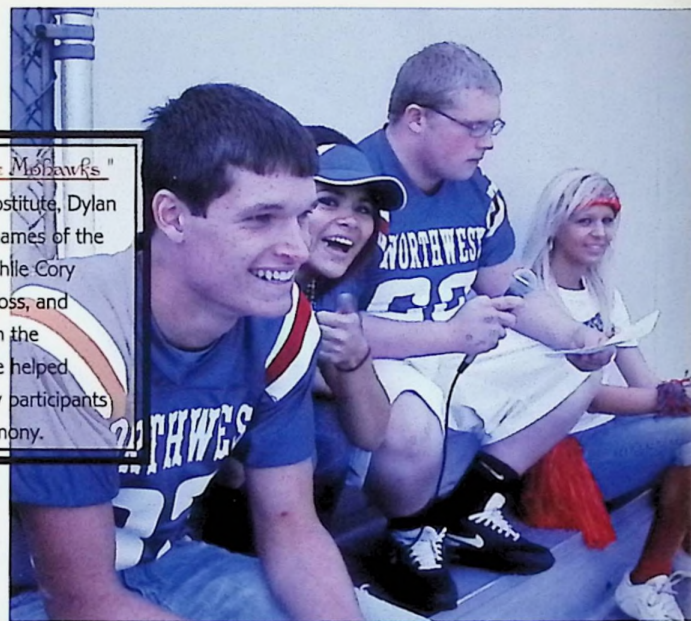

Man I Feel Like A Woman

Mr. Boyer escorts attendant Kylie Simon across the gym floor in front of the student body during the shocking pep rally performance. Kylie showcased the proper pageant attire equipped with all of the fashionable accessories.

Faux Voice of the Mobawks

Acting as Mr. Day's substitute, Dylan Osborn reads off the names of the queen and her court while Cory Burnworth, Amanda Doss, and Courtney Dowdy watch the procedure. This practice helped prepare all of the jittery participants for the upcoming ceremony.

Dance Like Nobodies Watching

Haley Schackart, Sarah Montgomery, Payton Gubernath, and Devin Jenkins energetically raise the roof at the football homecoming dance. The ceremony started early due to the stormy weather, so thankfully this portion of the night was held indoors.

Blain Honaker was the worst because his dress was a little bit too small."

Arriving in Style
Queen Kayla Clark, gracefully cruises the track in her silver 2011 Ford GT Mustang. Kayla and her parents traveled all the way to Cleveland to borrow this car for her grand entrance.

Sisters are Forever
Riding in a car chauffeured by Terry Bayes, Darbie Jenkins relishes her moment in the spotlight. Darby and her sister Devin were both selected as homecoming attendants.

Who Says Hard Work Isn't Messy?
Savannah Burchett and Chelsea Clark lift sparkly hands to showcase their hard work on the stars. The stars were the messiest because every inch of them was covered in red, sparkly glitter, "explained Chelsea.

Decked out with fake tans, teased hair, and flashy clothes, Michael Hobbs, Kalya Mitchell, and Jerome Evans show off their outfits during Spirit Week. Due to the popularity of the hit television program Jersey Shore, a day was dedicated to the show, and the students had the opportunity to dress up as whatever character they desired.

Senior attendant Amber Montavon stands gracefully under the multi-colored balloon arch after receiving her flowers and trophy from fellow senior basketball players Devin Jenkins and Payton Gubernath. Due to Amber's seniority, she had the privilege to choose her dress design, and her dress was different than all of the other attendants.

Haley Day cautiously cuts out the neon letters for her sign to be presented on the stage. Since the theme did not have any set colors, the girls had the freedom to choose any color letters for their signs.

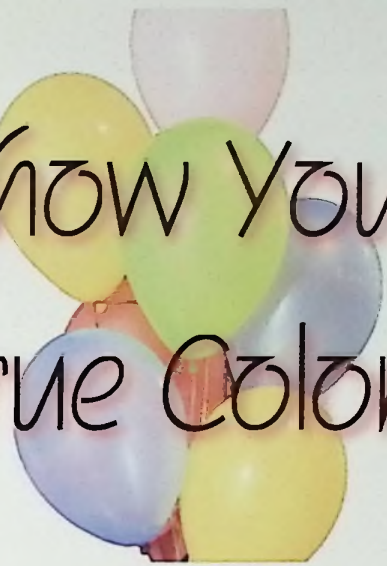

Erica Crabtree scans the megaphone to find the perfect place to write a heartfelt message and sign her name. All of the cheerleaders wrote their farewell messages on the megaphone, which was later presented to Tiffany Conley by Kaycee Kirkendall.

Show Your True Colors

After presenting Tiffany Conley with her flowers, Rachel Wolfenbarger, with camera in hand, gives Tiffany a congratulatory hug. Rachel later used the camera to capture up close and personal moments during the ceremony. "I gave Rachel her flowers last year when she was Junior Attendant, so I chose her to give me mine," stated Tiffany.

After putting on the surprise outfit drawn from the suitcase, Drew Scarberry races to the other end of the gym. Sprinting down the floor was a difficult task for Drew, considering the shoes he wore were five sizes too small.

Dancing the famous Cha-Cha Slide, the students who attended the dance display their bright neon glow sticks and necklaces. At the dance the glowing accessories were enhanced by the various black lights hung around the cafeteria.

At Rose's Beauty Salon, Destiny Emery sits patiently as Rose Thompson styles her hair in little, bouncy curls. An hour before pictures were taken, the girls met in Miss Reynolds' room to get dressed and relieve some pre-ceremony jitters.

Kirsten Redoutey carefully slides the sparkly, pink fabric over the metal frame for the arch on the stage. This arch was mistakenly ripped up from the stage and almost taken to the gym for the ceremony. Needless to say, the culprit was never caught and still has not owned up to his or her dirty deed.

Show Your Mohawk Spirit

M-O-H-A-W-K-S!

1. In honor of Spirit Day, John Miller and Ricky Stevens showcase their red, white, and blue painted faces. The boys really wanted to go 'all out' for this spirit day and decided together that they would paint their faces to show their school spirit.

2. Nichole Ellis, Hannah Gilley, Brooklyn Galloway, Fredrik Bakke, Kendra Brigner, and Tiffany Emmons show off their country getup on Farmer Day.

4. Shane Bush, Tyler Adams, and Kenny Hoffer display their school spirit during Sprit Day of basketball homecoming. That evening the students created a student section at the homecoming game to cheer on the basketball team.

5. Sophomore Matt Penix delivers the results of the Mohawk Idol competition to senior Kyle Ryan Seacrest 'Hall. Although all the competitors did a commendable job, Preston Hall won the crowd over and was awarded the title of the 2012 Mohawk Idol.

6. Zach Trowbridge, Alyson Gilley, Keri Stamper, Chrystal Reed, Beth Parsons, Sarah Howard, Courtney Wiley, Buddy Hobbs, and Kyle Maple reveal their creativity on Halloween.

7. Sophomore Travis Sifford tiptoes across the stage during the 'Man I Feel Like A Woman' contest at the bonfire before the last football game. Travis' outfit was equipped with a leopard shirt, black high-heels, a magenta wig, and a studded belt.

8. With dodge ball in hand, Timmy Hamblin scans the opposing senior team to decide which competitor he will take out next. Although the juniors put up a fight, the seniors eventually overcame them and won the tournament.

Senior Rodney Isaac wolfs down the banana flavored baby food in order to win the food race. During the basketball homecoming fun day, participants had to eat either vienna sausages, baby food, a banana, a peanut butter sandwich, or a boiled egg.

At the West football game, the cheer block proudly displays their school spirit. Earlier that day the Pep Club created signs and milk jug noise makers to boost the morale of the team.

In a desperate attempt to gain possession of the ball, Kyle Hall leaps in the air against Varsity assistant coach Jerry Barlow. On the last day of school before Christmas break, the seniors competed against the teachers in a basketball game to raise money for the upcoming Rome and Italy trip.

Courtyard of Dreams

Picture Perfect

After arriving to grand march, Zack Vanhose and date Brittany Allgood make their way to the school. That evening the couple was accompanied to dinner by Sarah Montgomery and Seth Tipton, Callie Preston and Justin Tackett.

Thinking Outside the Box

A select group of prom decorating members carefully put up the black, paper backdrop on the wooden wall. Since the top of the wall was too high to reach, the group created a system of moving each chair to the far right after the spot was stapled, which worked as a path for the crew, so they could walk straight along the wall without having to stop.

Let the Night Begin

The grand march attendees wait their turn to have pictures taken before entering the school. Mrs. Moore took pictures of every couple as soon as they arrived.

Arriving in Style
 After getting her hair done, Rachel Wolfenbarger carefully selects the color of eye shadow to match her dress. Rachel and date Jacob Shope arrived in an old-fashioned Chevrolet truck to grand march.

Decisions, Decisions
 Taylor Burchett, Jodi Bapst, Amber Montavon and Carson Seaman select each decoration for prom. Being class officers, the group selected options for prom decorations, the senior class shirt design, the class motto and the class song, and then they allowed the senior class to vote for each favorite.

Construction Zone
 The group of blue color workers stand around the construction zone as Sandy Simon records them hard at work. The boys dressed as construction workers because they were forced to do all of the heavy lifting involved with prom decorations, and they decided the attire would be appropriate.

Say Cheese!
 In her red sparkly one-shoulder dress, Brooke Tipton and her date Daniel Shirey smile for a picture under the archway. The originally pink arch was bought for homecoming and covered in black fabric to match the prom decorations.

Patiently Waiting
 With the girls sitting properly in the chairs and the boys standing behind them, all wait patiently for the remaining couples to make their way down the stone walkway. A fountain was placed in the middle of the floor and the couples separated to walk around it, meeting at the end for a picture.

I would definitely join ACDC because they produce good music and they are my favorite band.

Alan Pichel (15)

If you could join any musical group from any point in history, what group would you join?

"Probably The Spice Girls because when I was little I would always jam out to them."

Faith Francis, (13)

Chasity Pack quickly tries to gobble up the broccoli after the worker at the Sakura Hibachi Steak House tosses it to her. The chef tossed pieces to each member and unfortunately, not one person from the seven member group caught it.

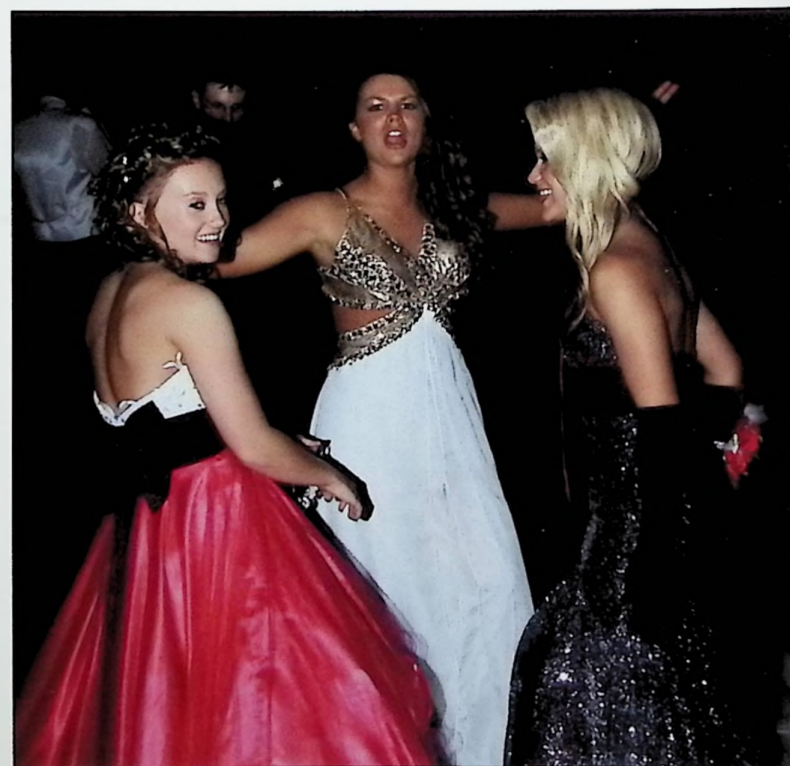

Seniors Eli Emmons, Austin Phillips and Mitchell Lute dance the legendary Bemie "dance. The Bemie "dance was copied from the movie Weekend at Bernie's, and was a favorite among the students for the past couple of years.

Payton Gubernath and Cody Penn dance to one of the slow dance songs played at the prom. Payton decided to take Cody as her date after the couple had been dating for a few months prior to prom.

After hopping onto the bull, Savannah Galloway clenches the rope attached to the bull's back as tightly as she can in a desperate attempt to stay on. Among the students who attended the after prom, there was a competition to see who could stay on the bull the longest.

Kaycee Kirkendall, Chelsea Clark, and Savannah Burchett dance the night away during the senior prom. Although these girls aren't seniors, they were asked by senior boys which made them eligible to attend.

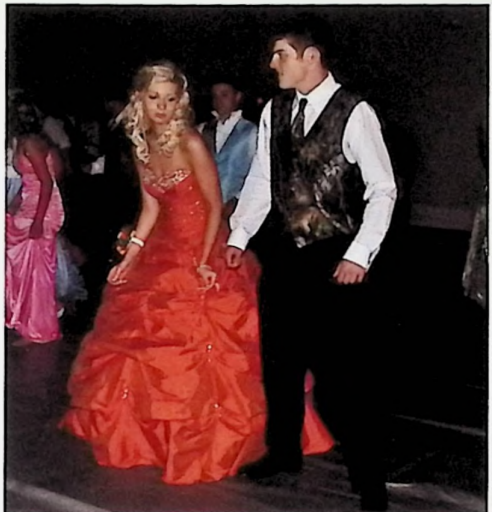

Tyler Vastine and Chambers McClay lounge in the blowup during after prom. The blow up was supposed to be used for basketball, but instead it was mostly used for relaxing into the late hours of the night.

Dancing the famous 'John Wall' dance, Courtney Hill and Sam Boyd throw their fists up in the air. The girls danced all night, attended after prom, and eventually crashed in the early hours of the morning.

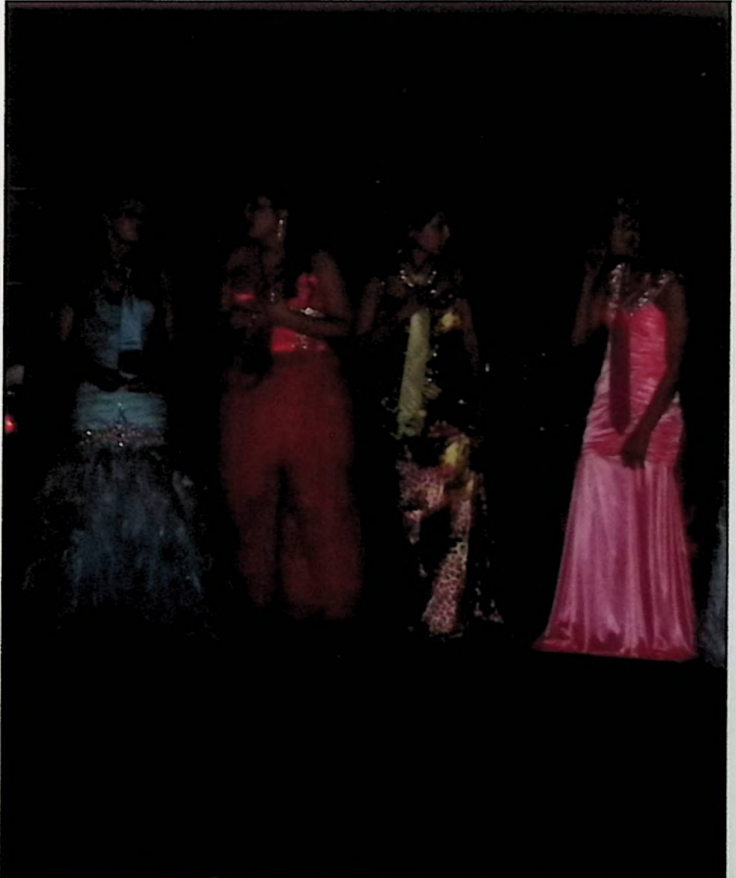

Logan Kongos in his camouflage tuxedo and Katelyn Groves in her bright orange dress, dance the famous Cha-Cha Slide. Rather than wearing a camouflage dress to match Logan's tux, Katelyn decided on an orange dress that complemented the camouflage theme.

Best friends Maranda Murphy, Holly Miller, Kayla Howard, and Kelsey Howard stand in the circle designed for the Northwest seniors attending the prom. The senior song was played while everyone held hands and sang along to the tune.

Dates Alessandro Fumagalli and Mariah Spriggs, Faith Francis and Joey Taylor, Jordan Gambill and Kelsie Book, and Jennifer Carver and Elliot Wuycheck wrap their arms around each other for a snapshot at the dance. The couples spent the evening dancing to the songs played and resting their feet at the tables and chairs set up around the dance floor.

The Future Belongs to those who Prepare for It

1. Creating some final high school memories, best friends Chasity Pack and Katelyn Groves capture the day digitally. Chasity wanted to remember the day, so she went around taking pictures with all the senior girls.

2. Mr. Jenkins passes out caps and gowns to the eager seniors during graduation practice. The seniors also received the time capsules they had completed their freshman year.

3. Austin Phillips and Dylan Osborn pose for the camera before it was time to get serious. The boys did not want to remember graduation as a sad day, they would rather remember it as a fun day they spent with all their friends.

4. PSEO student Shelby Gleason stands after her name is announced along with the scholarships she has earned. Even though she was at Shawnee State University for her senior year, she applied for and was awarded many scholarships.

5. Valedictorians Amber Montavon, Alexis Gambill, Holly Eichenlaub, Jodi Bapst, and Taylor Burchett stand in front of the Huntington Art Museum at the Best of the Class recognition. Throughout the day the girls recorded video that would later be shown on WSAZ.

8. Salutatorian Jordan Nickles courageously delivers the speech, required by all salutatorians and valedictorians. Jordan's speech explained his reasons for taking PSEO at Shawnee State University.

After four years of dedication to the football team, Mitchell Lute finally receives his four-year award at graduation practice. The seniors who completed four years of a sport collected their awards at graduation practice rather than the banquet.

Junior Marshalls Melanie Smalley and Cailey Mullins lead the seniors out for graduation. Not only did Melanie and Cailey take part in the commencement ceremony, they were required to be at the school for graduation practice the Friday before.

Remington Throckmorton and Chambers McClay stand proudly with their newly awarded Sean Miller Scholarships. The Sean Miller, Seth Ralstin, and Mike Orban Scholarships were given out at graduation and the recipients were unaware that they would receive them.

Mr. Scarberry proudly presents the class of 2012 and the seniors proceed to throw their caps in the air. Over the course of the year, the seniors managed to earn $307,644 in scholarship money for college.

Luke,
The moment we first saw you,
You were so little then.
Sometimes we can't help but wish,
You were that little once again.
A head of blonde hair,
And big blue smiling eyes,
The love that grew was instant.
It was nothing we could disguise.
You began to walk and talk,
and push our hands away.
It was then that we realized,
You would be a man someday.
We've debated and we struggled,
Side by side we have overcome.
There is nothing that can break
This parent's love for their son.
Love,

Balfour Publishing Company of Dallas, Texas printed the 2011-2012 yearbook. The theme, Gotcha Covered, was developed by the entire staff with the assistance of Ms. Weaver. Cover and end sheet designs were created by editors Tiffany Conley and Alexis Gambill along with cover artist Stephan Williams. Balfour Representative is Lindsey Swank. All head shots were taken by Kevin Hoops from Impressive Studios. Thank you to Brenda Moore, Webmasters, Impressive Studios, and Ruth Boll whose photography is included in this book. One last thanks to Rebecca Weaver for all of her input and hard work.
