The first thing I noticed when I stepped out of the airplane was the humidity.
The air was thick and sticky, clinging to my skin. I had heard it was hot, but I didn't realize how hot it would be.
The sun was shining brightly, and the temperature was already in the 80s. I had worn a light-colored shirt and shorts, but I felt like I was walking into a furnace. The humidity was overwhelming, and I was sure I was going to get a heat stroke. I had never experienced anything like this before, and I was not looking forward to the rest of the day.

The humidity was a relief compared to the dry heat of California. I had been told it was bad, but I was glad to be here. The humidity was just what I needed. I had
realize how hot it would be.

I have been thinking of the things that I have done in the past few years and how much I have learned from them.
I have seen how important it is to be honest and to do the right thing. I have also learned that it is important to be kind and to help others. I have seen how much joy there is in helping someone in need. I have also learned that it is important to be patient and to
